

National Capital Commission - Exterior Free-standing Heritage Plaques

Location Ottawa, Ontario
Designer / Architect National Capital Commission
Duration Feb 2000 - Sep 2001

Scope - Soheil Mosun Limited was contracted by the Government of Canada (National Capital Commission) to produce (10) free standing heritage plaques depicting various important milestones in Canadian history. These plaques were cast in solid bronze and patinaed, and are an informative wayfinding component, essential to the first phase of the Confederation Boulevard walking and biking tour route.

Highlights - These (10) plaques contain both original artwork and 3 dimensional cast artifacts relevant to the history and story they are portraying. Cast from solid bronze and patinaed with SML's True-Green® formula, these plaques will endure the harsh conditions of Canada's climate for many years to come. Each plaque is mounted to a concrete pillar atop paver's slabs, with (3) of the plaques mounted to bridge decking.

Etched logo in bronze

Detail of the sculpted and cast artwork atop one of the (10) original Confederation Boulevard plaques

An exquisitely rendered miniature bell

One of the (10) original Confederation Boulevard plaques overlooking the Ottawa river and Parliament buildings of Canada

Highly detailed cast artifacts adorn these plaques